“Literacy” has taken on a new meaning as texts are no longer a linear form of presentation limited to words, but are composed of various modes of communication.

Pedagogy to Enhance Literacy Development

Interacting with Multimodal Texts

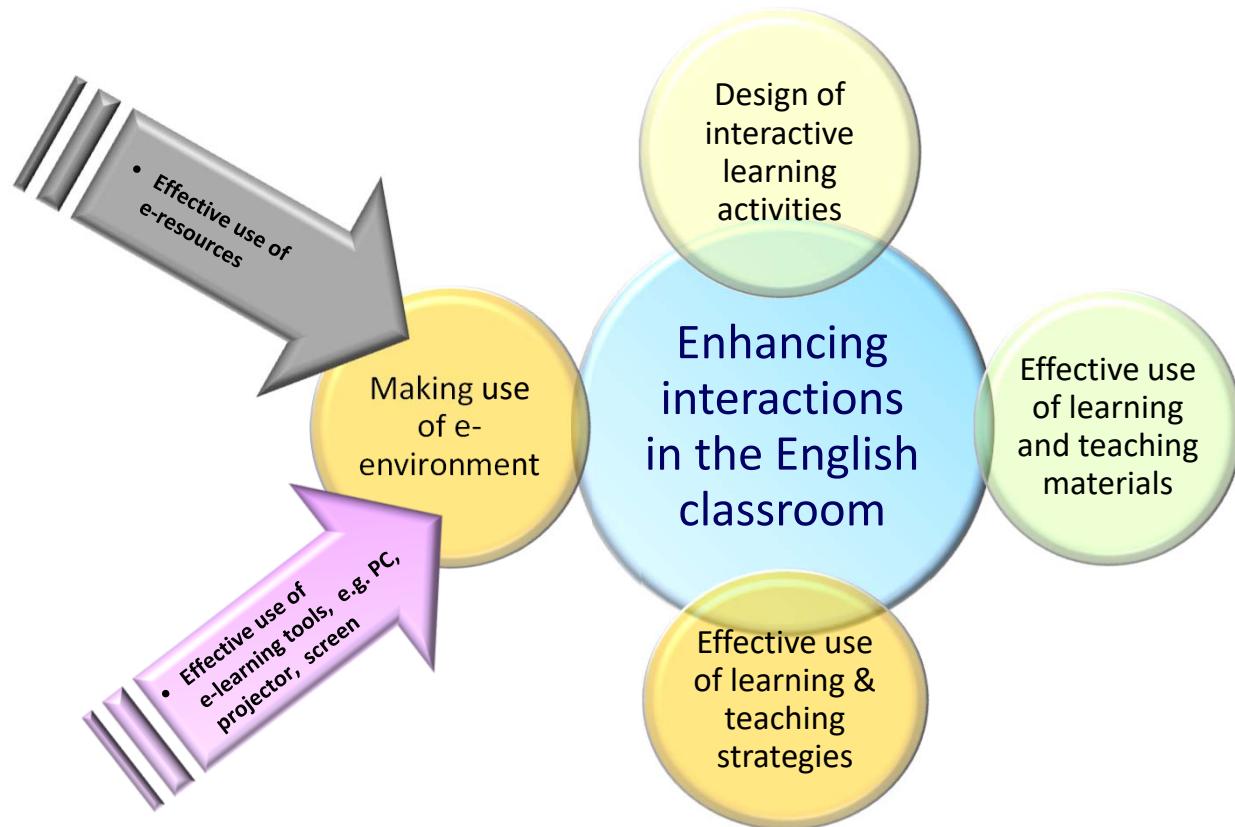

Producing Multimodal Texts

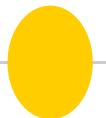

e-Learning

e-Learning refers to an open and flexible learning mode involving the use of the electronic media, including the use of digital resources and communication tools to achieve the learning objectives.

Values education in different domains

When incorporating values education into the school-based English Language curriculum, schools should take into consideration:

Grammar in Context and Text Grammar

Strengthening Assessment for Learning (AfL)

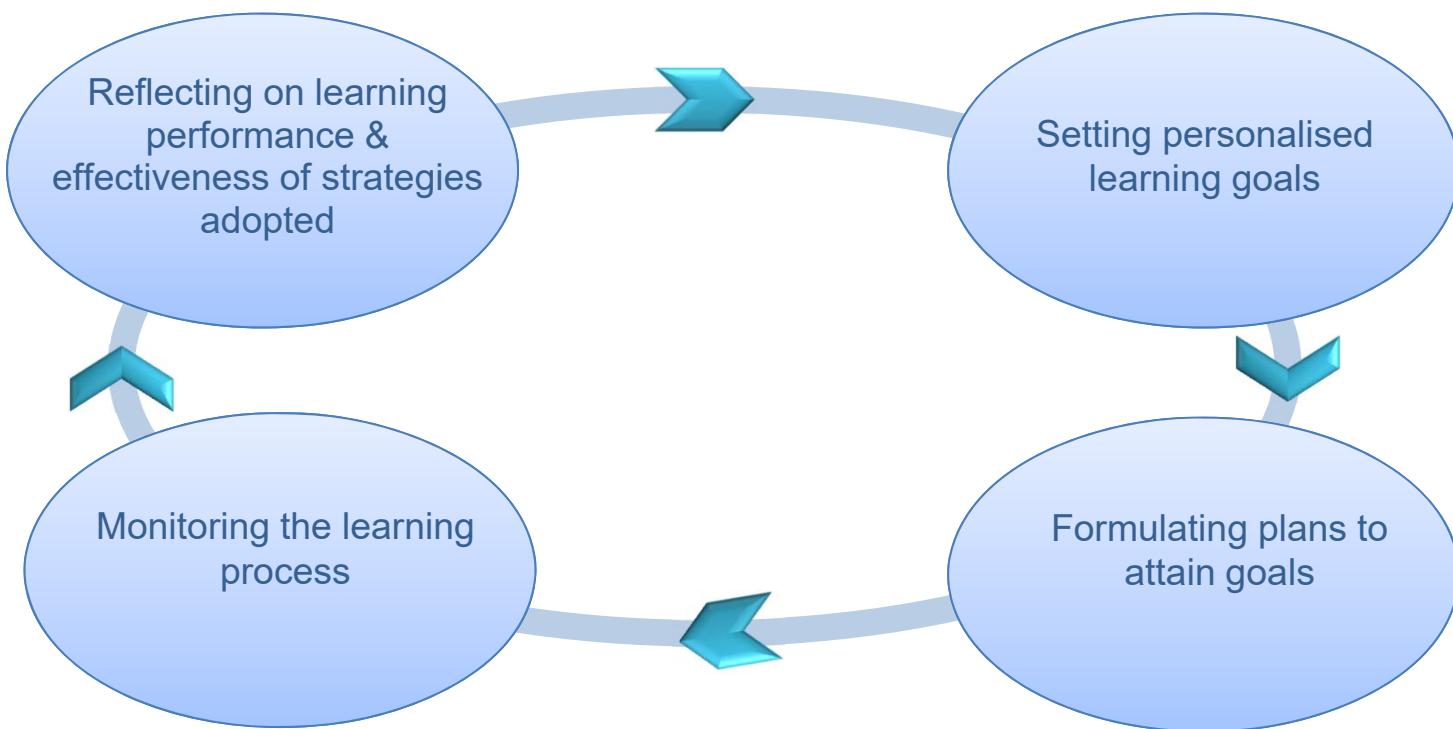

Assessment tools

Assessment data

Extending AfL to Assessment as Learning

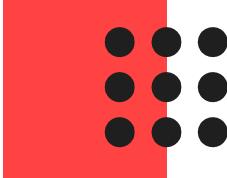

Strategies to promote Assessment as Learning

In order to enable students to take charge of their own learning, teachers can do the following:

identifying expected learning outcomes	creating criteria of good practices with the students	guiding students to set goals
teaching enabling skills (e.g. dictionary skills, research skills, phonics skills and vocabulary building strategies)	providing opportunities for students to practise the skills that need to be learned or mastered	modelling of learning strategies (e.g. the skills of self-reflection) through think-aloud
discussing sample student work and providing constructive feedback to students as they learn	using different kinds of assessment forms (e.g. KWHL Table, SWOT, PMI, Traffic Light, Feedback Sandwich) to facilitate self-reflection	guiding students to keep track of their own learning

Some Strategies to Cater for Learner Diversity

Reading across the Curriculum

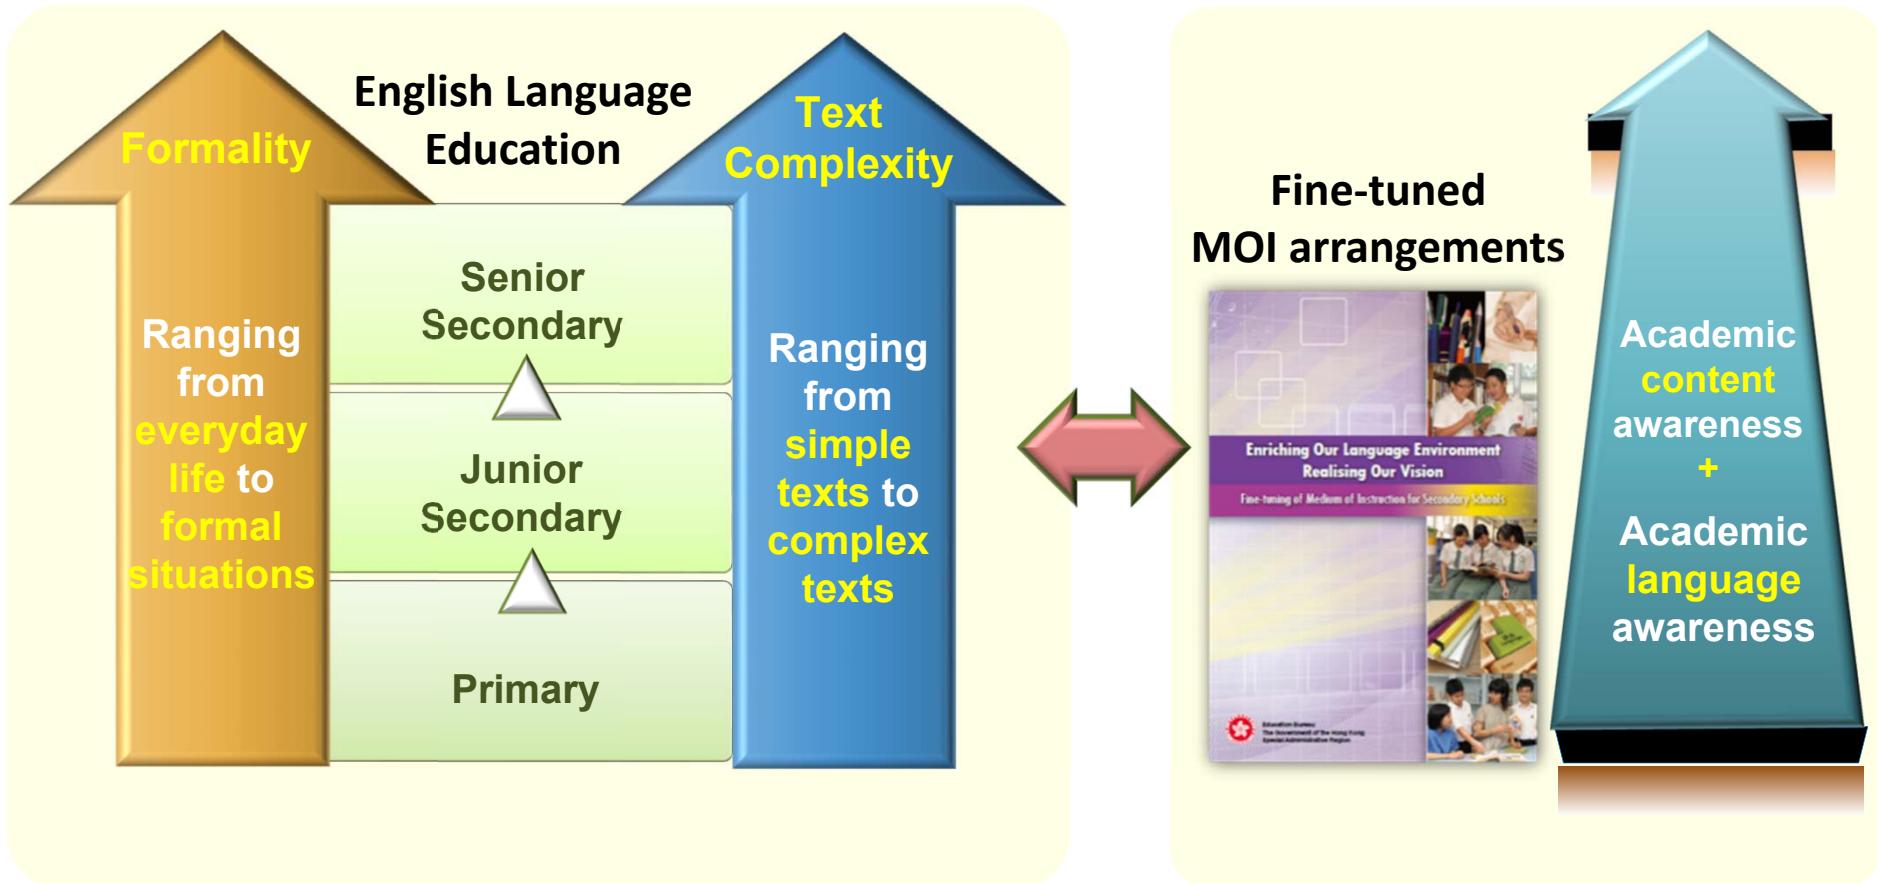

Discussion

In the Chat Box, please share:-

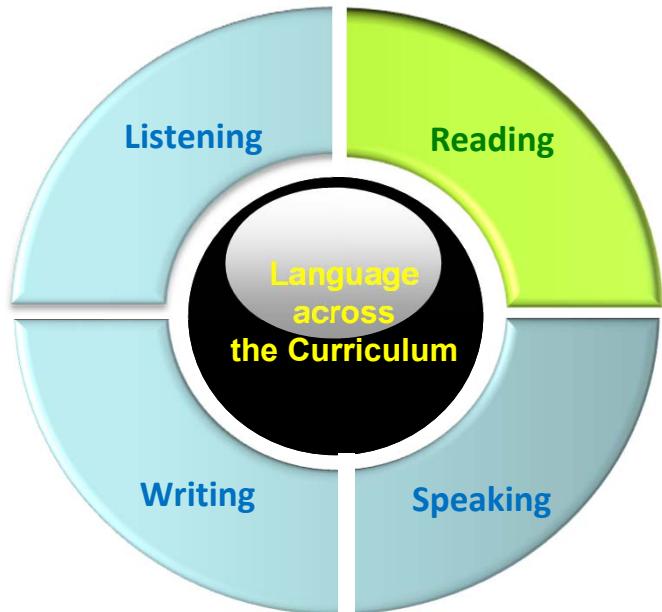

- 1) How does your school promote English reading?
- 2) What is your experience in collaborating with teachers of other panels in promoting Reading across the Curriculum or cross-KLA activities to support students' learning of English?

Challenges for Secondary School Students

Language demand grows in terms of formality and text complexity

Reading across the Curriculum

- Reading across the Curriculum is a component within Language across the curriculum (LaC)
- Reading across the Curriculum - reading as a fundamental mode of learning

(Martin & Rose, 2005)

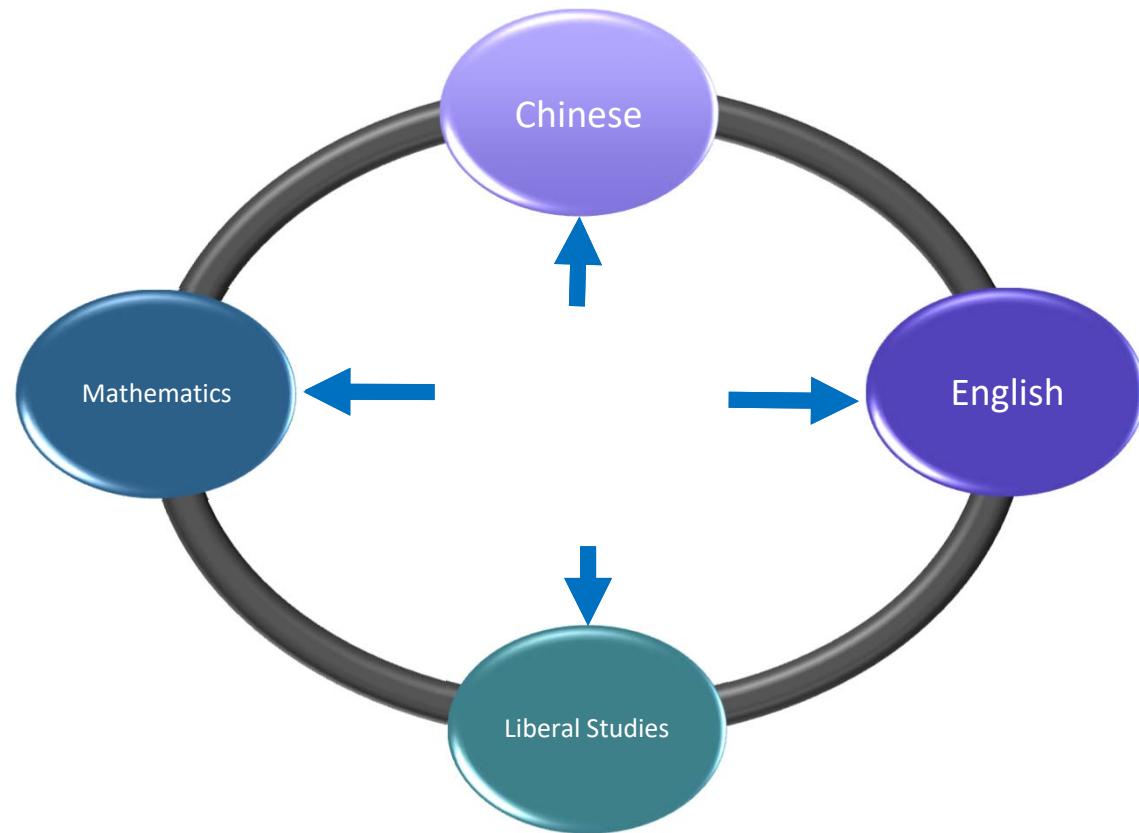

Reading across the Curriculum

- Reading across the curriculum (RaC) helps students establish meaningful links among concepts and ideas acquired in different KLAs.
- RaC
 - explicit teaching of reading skills and strategies to be integrated with the curriculum
 - students learning to read
 - the subject matter of pedagogic texts
 - the associated language patterns
 - develop students' literacy skills, positive values and attitudes, deep learning and world knowledge

- Challenging tasks for more-able students

Preparation tasks before the lesson

Section 2: Reading – People who changed the world

1) Lesson objectives:

Knowledge to identify the keywords for the sequence of events

Skill (Reading) to interpret the information through sequencing events in chronological order

Attitude to appreciate the amazing people who changed the world

2) Situation:

There will be a poster design competition in the theme-based learning week on famous people around the world. You are going to choose one celebrity for your poster. Before that, you will read three texts of three amazing people who have done something to change the world. You have to finish the tasks in Part 4, 'Self-regulated learning', and Part 5, 'Let's find out more!' before you come to class.

When you come to class, start reading aloud the three texts of three amazing people on Oxford English 3B P.26.

3) Reading:

Oxford English 3B P.26

You may listen to the recording of the three texts of three amazing people via the following link:
http://trc.oupchina.com.hk/elt/oxfordenglish/student/recording3B_6.htm

Major updates:
Literacy development
Value's education
Catering for learner diversity

Task 1: Sequencing different events of the person in chronological order (arranged in the order in which they occurred).

Sometimes, the personal profiles do not list events in exactly chronological order, nor do they always give the exact date for every event. Therefore, it is important to sequence different events of the person in chronological order so that you can have a better understanding of a person.

Skill:

There are a few things you can find out in the texts that help you sequence the events more easily. They are:

- years
- phrases such as 'by the time' and 'at the age of'
- words such as 'since', 'after' and 'then'
- cohesive markers such as 'first', 'second' and so on

Level Up: (Optional) What you can learn from Neil Armstrong/ Christopher Columbus?
(Hints: You can make use of the vocabulary items in Section 1.)

Stage 3 Revise learning and teaching materials

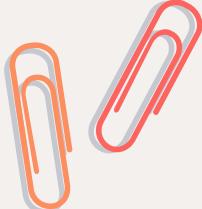

Stage 3: Ideate

Task 1: You are going to discuss how to describe the feelings of the student (feeling + causes+ facial expressions/ body language) and how the student dealt with the problem. To brainstorm more ideas, put down some keywords before you share with your groupmates and develop more ideas using post-its.

Step 1: Individually, put down key ideas in the boxes.

Groups	Situation	Feeling, possible causes	Solutions
Example	My parents were unemployed last year.	Worried, upset cried, couldn't sleep No money for lunch, picnic	Told his teachers Subsidy from school Parents applied for subsidy from the government Got a part-time job
1-3	My younger sister bothered me to play with her, so we kept arguing and even fighting.
4-5	My elder brother shares a bedroom with me. He took his DSE exam and occupied the bedroom to study.
6-7	My parents and siblings were always on their phones.

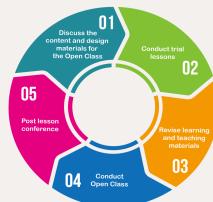

Stage 3: Ideate

Teacher's reflection

Marco Wong

In this round of lesson study, we chose 'conditional sentences' to teach in both S2 and S5 English classes. In S2, we focused more on the form and functions of Conditional Sentences Type 2 while we focused more on how Conditional Sentences Types 1 and 3 can be used to give solutions in a problem-solution essay.

For the sake of our professional development, we tried a few things throughout the lesson study. We made use of the latest movie, Avengers 3, as the setting in the S2 class. We have found that students can be more engaged when the setting addresses their interests. In this open class, instead of following the textbook, it was the first time to create a scenario that most students show strong interest and they are familiar with the setting. Therefore, when they develop their content, they can easily give more concrete ideas and understand the context.

In the S5 class, we used 'google sheet' to collect some preparation work from students in the S5 class. The 'google sheet' also helps teachers understand what to focus on when students finish their preparation. Before we had it, sometimes we spent much time on something students had already mastered. With the use of online tools, we can prepare to tackle the difficult part more effectively.

Apart from the new initiatives, we are very grateful to have the invaluable comments from Principal Ip. With these comments, we can further improve our teaching in the foreseeable future by trying the following:

- 1) We can set a focus in each form of reading aloud. For example, we can focus on the volume in S1 reading aloud to build up students' confidence and in S5 we can focus on intonation.
- 2) We can try to have an expert group in different forms too. This time, we had one S5 student to display her own work on the i-board as a sample. We can try this in different forms so that the more-able students can gain a higher sense of success and other students can have some good samples to learn from. The effect of peer learning can be maximized.
- 3) We can work closer with the Liberal Studies and Chinese Language to help develop students' critical thinking skills. When it comes to the teaching of problem-solution essays or argumentative essays, we can share similar frameworks and then we can focus our attention to language learning.
