

Learning targets of the PSHE KLA embedded with humanistic qualities and entrepreneurial spirit

The following diagram illustrates how two of the key focuses for curriculum development, humanistic qualities and entrepreneurial spirit, are embedded in the learning targets of the PSHE KLA.

● Humanistic Qualities

Learning targets of the PSHE KLA

To nurture humanistic qualities in students aims to enable them to:

Learning targets of the PSHE KLA

To nurture humanistic qualities in students aims to enable them to:

- appreciate the interaction between human beings and the environment in terms of the processes and patterns of natural and human features in different places, and participate in sustaining, conserving and improving the environment;
- appreciate that the optimal use of resources is achieved through enterprise and management, and that people's participation in economic activities and their ever-changing nature give rise to new work opportunities and conditions; and
- demonstrate active and responsible citizenship based on an understanding of and a respect for the roles, rights and responsibilities of individuals and groups, and a due concern for the importance of justice, and making recommendations to tackle local, national and global issues.

- cultivate an enhanced capacity for aesthetic appreciation
- care for the environment, possess a love for nature and be concerned about sustainable development

- respect and care about the well-being of others, treat others as equals and be willing to contribute to the common good

● Entrepreneurial Spirit

Learning targets of the PSHE KLA

To nurture entrepreneurial spirit in students aims to enable them to:

Students will learn to:

- develop a healthy lifestyle both physically and emotionally, have a positive outlook on life and treasure harmonious relationships with family members and others in different communities;
- develop an understanding of the changing relationships of people, locations and events in the past and how they impact on the human society today and in the future;
- appreciate the characteristics and values of their own culture and the influences of culture on human life, and develop appreciation and respect for the culture and heritage of other communities;

- take initiatives and responsibilities
- take calculated risks
- uphold perseverance in times of uncertainty

Learning targets of the PSHE KLA

- appreciate the interaction between human beings and the environment in terms of the processes and patterns of natural and human features in different places, and participate in sustaining, conserving and improving the environment;
- appreciate that the optimal use of resources is achieved through enterprise and management, and that people's participation in economic activities and their ever-changing nature give rise to new work opportunities and conditions; and
- demonstrate active and responsible citizenship based on an understanding of and a respect for the roles, rights and responsibilities of individuals and groups, and a due concern for the importance of justice, and making recommendations to tackle local, national and global issues.

To nurture entrepreneurial spirit in students aims to enable them to:

- possess creativity and innovativeness
- take initiatives and responsibilities
- take calculated risks
- uphold perseverance in times of uncertainty
- seize the best of the opportunities ahead

- possess creativity and innovativeness