Dear Aunt Dora,

I have noticed that people keep their distance when I am talking to them. They seem to come up to me but then they back away. I recently approached an attractive girl in my class to ask her out on a date. She smiled at me but when I started talking, she backed away a bit and seemed keen to go away. I'm afraid something is wrong. I've asked one of my friends but he didn't say anything and I feel too embarrassed to ask anyone else. My parents are busy working so I don't want to bother them.

Please help me!
