Classroom Implications

(Source: http://classroom21.ncdpi.wikispaces.net/Padlet)

Padlet can be used in many different brainstorming activities or discussions where participation can be active rather than passive for all students. Some suggestions for using padlet in the classroom are:

- K-W-L charts for pre and post assessment
- use as a formative assessment tool to check for student understanding
- place a sentence starter on a wall and allow students to complete with their own ideas
- allow students to ask questions about topics or assignments
- use a wall for group research projects to share ideas and web addresses
- showcase student work
- use to collect feedback or as a ticket out the door

Padlet users can control the privacy settings and also can choose to moderate comments and approve before they appear.
